VII Burung Kakaktua

Bahasa Indonesia	English
Burung kakaktua hinggap di jendela nenek sudah tua giginya tinggal dua.	The cockatoo Sits on the window sill, My grandmother is already old And she only has two teeth!
Tredung, tredung, tredung tra la la Tredung, tredung, tredung tra la la Tredung, tredung, tredung tra la la burung kakaktua.	Tredung, tredung, tredung tra la la Tredung, tredung, tredung tra la la Tredung, tredung, tredung tra la la The cockatoo
Giginya tinggal dua Nenek sudah tua Hinggap di jendela Seperti kakaktua!	She only has two teeth left Grandma is already old, She sits on the window sill Like the cockatoo!

Arranger's note

Burung Kakaktua, also known as the Cockatoo, is an Indonesian Children folk song, thought to have originated from the Maluku Islands. This song is also popular in Malaysia and Singapore.

As with many children folk songs, the words are typically simple, and often contains nonsensical or meaningless words. In this case, that applies to the chorus, where 'Tredung, tredung, tra la la' is more likely written simply as a musical hook (catchy musical riff) to get the kids to sing together. As a result, many versions of the chorus exist. The more popular ones include 'Le Chum, le chum mu la la', 'Trek dung, trek dung, o la la' and 'Le trum, le trum, u la la'. I have chosen 'le chum, le chum, u la la' as I am most familiar with that. The choral director can feel free to use any versions that works best for the choir.

For this arrangement, the verses and choruses are sung in different meters and tempos. This is a little like the sometimes-unsteady gait of the Cockatoo. Furthermore, each verse and chorus is sung in a different key, which is my take on these intelligent and intensely curious birds, and their propensity for trying new things. Do remember to swing the choruses without rushing the tempo. The final spoken 'u la la' offers a nice staging moment for the singers.
