Arranger's note

"Inh là ời" is a traditional Vietnamese folk song that celebrates the beauty of nature, particularly the arrival of spring. The song is often associated with the Tày and Nùng communities, who are indigenous ethnic groups residing primarily in the Northwestern mountainous regions of Vietnam.

The phrase "Inh là ời" itself doesn't have a specific meaning in Vietnamese but is used as an exclamation to express joy, excitement, or admiration. It's often paired with "sao nõng ời" to create a rhythmic and melodic expression in folk songs. "Inh là ời" is typically sung in a lively and energetic manner, reflecting the exuberance of spring and the beauty of the natural world. This song is often featured in community gatherings and celebrations, fostering a sense of togetherness and cultural identity.
