Arranger's Note

This current arrangement is a re-harmonization of the song “Dinumdum Ko Ikaw” (I Remember You). It is offered in loving memory of the arranger’s mother, Felicidad Q. Lagarde, who passed away in October 2018 as well as a tribute to all the valiant front liners who passed on because of the Covid-19 pandemic.

From the cultural and musical point of view, this updated arrangement is anchored on the remarkable popularity of the song among the people of Eastern Visayas vis-à-vis the application of more challenging techniques in choral arranging which include the lament bass, counterpoint, extended chords, hemiola, etc. Here, the revised arrangement strives to give life to the imagery, color and emotional intensity of the lyrics as written by the esteemed poet laureate of Leyte, Iluminado Lucente.

It must be noted that while the unpublished manuscript entitled, “Mga Pinili Nga Kanta Ha Tacloban” (Selected Folk Songs of Tacloban), a Leyte Samar Studies Supplement (1968) of the Divine Word University indicate that the title of the song is “Kon Harapit an Adlaw Matunod” (When the Sun is About to Set), the Leyte-Samar Studies Journal (Vol. 2, Nos.1 and 2, 1967 and 1968) of the same University indicated that the song is entitled “Dinumdum Ko Ikaw”. This title also appears on the Graduate School thesis of Salud Katindoy de Veyra in 1956.

Regardless of its conflicting title, it must be emphasized that, according to Leonor Almeria, the song was an original composition of the national hero Dr. Jose Rizal entitled “Nostalgia”. This historical information is clearly indicated in her 1977 unpublished master’s thesis at the Divine Word University which presented the original Spanish lyrics that Rizal wrote as shown below:

Cuando muere la pálida tarde
 Y me veo tan lejos de ti
 Lloro entonces y el alma cobarde
 En las sombras comienza gemir

 Te acaricia, te busca y te invita
 A evocar los recuerdos de ayer
 Más al punto se marchita
 De mi ansias la flor

 Es que el aislamiento cruel
 El pecho me llena de hiel
 Al traerme los ecos
 Del tiempo dichoso que huyó

 Por eso no puedo sin ti
 Hallar el placer que perdí
 Ni encuentro un alivio
 En mi llanto de amor

Having noted its melancholic and poignant melody, Lucente wrote the picturesque Lineyte-Samarnon lyrics and used the song for his melodramatic play entitled, “Diri Daraga, Diri Balo, Diri Inasaw-an” (Not a Maiden, Not a Widow, Not a Married Woman). Presented below are the lyrics that Lucente wrote and its corresponding English translation. Like most of the songs in this collection, this arrangement is lined up as a contest piece for the Karantahay Choral Competition.

Kon harapit an adlaw matunod Ngan ha imo harayo ako Naputok an kakulba ha dughan An kamingaw asay ko dako	When the sun is about to set And I am far away from you My heart bursts with anxiety My yearning for you grows
Pagtikang han panuro han tun-og Ha mga dahon bukad panhumog Inin luha daw burabod Waray hunong hin pagtubod	When the dewdrops start falling Moistening the leaves and flowers Tears of yearning, like a stream Endlessly wells up and flow
Kon na danggat an gab-i Nadugang an kamingaw Labi kon nabati han huni han kalaw	When the evening is at hand My loneliness deepens More so when I hear the hornbill cry
Pagpula han sidlangan Pagpuni-as han adlaw Pagkalpad han maya Dinumdum ko ikaw	When the eastern sky turns gold When the sun rises When the maya* takes flight I remember you

*Maya is the name of an indigenous bird that mainly thrive in rice fields across the country.
